

My name is Leslie McGaha. I have been a Safety, Health and Environmental professional since 2000, starting first in the US Army and then moving to industry in Houston in 2007. I am currently a CSP and did have my CHMM. I am currently working on my Masters through the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

I'm a regional health and safety manager for a chemical repackaging and distribution company first supporting the upper Midwest and now I supporting locations in Texas and Louisiana. Prior to that, I was in Oil & Gas, Manufacturing, and Military Support.

I have one son, and one grandson. My husband, Eric, and I have been married for nearly 20 years - since we first met while we were both active-duty Army.

In my free time, I enjoy outdoors activities, cars, fishing, playing with my dogs, and working around the house.
