

Jimm Cooper, a Certified Safety Professional, has been involved in Health, Safety & Environmental work for over 20 years. He has been fortunate enough to work with construction companies where a strong safety culture and awareness co-exist with excellent quality craftsmanship and attention to detail during construction projects to achieve a high production rate with few incidents.

Jimm started in construction as a carpenter's helper while in high school. He has built and remodeled homes, furniture, cabinets, toys and figurines from wood. Woodworking and leather craft are his main hobbies. He has used his construction experience to sell building materials, design projects and manage construction operations.

Jimm is an OSHA Authorized Trainer for General Industry and Construction and an MSHA Surface Mines Trainer. He owns JIMMS Safety Associates to conduct OSHA classes and perform HSE inspections, audits and incident analyses. He is a retired Licensed Paramedic and EMS-Instructor. He has been married 24 years, has two sons and 2 grandchildren.
